

New Findings Affirm Impact of a Master's Degree on Student Performance

According to the results of a recently released independent study of elementary educators in a large public school district in suburban Georgia, master's degrees have an impact on improving student performance. To learn more and download a free copy of the study, go to www.WaldenU.edu/Outcomes.

The Richard W. Riley College of Education and Leadership at Walden University offers master's degree programs designed to help you and your students succeed. Select from a number of programs including the M.S. in Education, M.S. in Early Childhood Studies, and the M.S. in Instructional Design and Technology. As an NEA member, you may be eligible to receive a 10% tuition reduction and a $50 application fee waiver when you enroll as a new student in one of Walden's eligible programs. You may also apply for Walden's NEA Excellence in Public School Education Full-Tuition Scholarship Program.

Find out more about Walden University's master's degree programs and special opportunities for NEA members online at www.neamb.com under the Professional Resources Tab, Products & Services.