

OVERVIEW

MORALE IN THE ERA OF EDUCATION REFORM

In a well-documented national trend, educator morale is falling; sadly, this is true even in Howard County. Agreement with the statement “Overall, morale in my school/work site is good” was only 59%, down from 68% last year. Dramatically increased workload related to the Race To The Top evaluation system is contributing to a decline in morale (73%, up twenty points from the 2011 level of 53%). There is a steep decline in the perception that respondents’ work is evaluated fairly (72%, down from 88%).

A majority of respondents say their professional development experiences are not meaningful and worthwhile (46%, down from 53%). Less than one-quarter believes they are paid fairly (23%, down from 52%). Sixty-nine percent say there is too much instructional time spent on administering assessments (up from 59%), and only 41% say they have adequate time during the workday to plan, prepare, and do the job (down from 55%).

Still, respondents (81%) feel successful in their work, though there is a marked decline in this attitude from the previous year’s 89%. Like last year, 90% of respondents agree administrators respect their negotiated contracts. They believe their environment is conducive to success (80%) and are treated as professionals (82%) at their schools.

Most respondents agree Howard County Public School System (HCPSS) offer the possibility of opportunities for advancement (67%, down from 73%) and provides appropriate support and training (71%, down from 79%). Most respondents (76%) agree administrators/ supervisors support them in enforcing discipline, their planning time is respected by administrators/supervisors (78%, down from 83%), and they have adequate work and storage space to prepare and do their jobs (80%). There is good teamwork among school-based staff (78%), non-instructional duties are equitably assigned (72%, down from 78%), there is open communication and trust (68%), and respondents say they can speak openly about important issues at their school without fear of repercussions (66%).

LEADERSHIP CRISIS

Confidence in the Superintendent has fallen precipitously (46%, down from 74%), and hit historic lows for the Howard County Board of Education (28%, down from 60%).

CONFIDENCE IN HCEA

The vast majority of respondents (89%, for two consecutive years, and up five points from 84% in 2011) are confident in the leadership exhibited by the Howard County Education Association. Notably, even non-union respondents have confidence (74%) in the Association.

HARASSMENT

2013-2014 HCEA Job Satisfaction Survey

In the last 12 months, 29% of respondents experienced harassing behavior from parents, 14% of respondents experienced harassing behavior from colleagues, and 11% of respondents experienced harassing behavior from administrators/supervisors. These numbers are largely unchanged from the previous survey.

NOTES

The HCEA Job Satisfaction Survey is a long-standing and highly regarded service provided to the Association's members and the Howard County community annually since the early 1990's. Almost 2700 HCPSS employees participated in 2013-14. The survey is always conducted by an independent firm and runs from the beginning of the second semester in January to late February. In order for employees to have detailed information in the voluntary transfer process, survey results are released prior to April 1st.
